New Signs Will Clock Speeders on Route 6

By Jean Perry

Speeding on Route 6. For years it has been a major issue in Marion, and during those years, aside from what speed enforcement the Police Department could manage, progress remained in neutral at the state level. But lately the gear has been shifted and progress is accelerating.

The Marion Board of Selectmen and Police Chief John Garcia joined State Representative William Straus and various Massachusetts Department of Transportation employees on the side of Route 6 in East Marion the morning of Tuesday, June 12, for the unveiling and installation of the first of two permanent traffic speed indicator signs.

Straus said he had been working closely and monitoring the progress of the MassDOT's Route 6 corridor traffic study, and he visited Marion's stretch of Route 6 last December while hearing residents' concerns, as well as those of town officials.

Straus said he hopes the two signs will slow drivers down travelling that stretch of Route 6.

Bill Travers, MassDOT Highway Division District

On the cover: On the 'Clock' – Now you can literally watch your speed as you (hopefully) watch your speed on Route 6 with the two new permanent traffic speed indicators both east and west of the Little Neck Village entrance in East Marion. Rep. William Straus joined Police Chief John Garcia, MassDOT workers, and the Board of Selectmen early on Tuesday, June 12, for the unveiling and installation of the signs. 5 operations engineer, acknowledged the "long history" of excessive speeding along this section of Route 6 near Little Neck Village.

"They've been sending us complaints," said Travers, which, along with concerns voiced by former Police Chief Lincoln Miller and past elected officials, helped prompt the speed study and the search for an appropriate measure to help reduce speeding. "So we looked at some options to get people to slow down."

Over time, as residents and the Town increased the frequency and urgency of their correspondence with their state representative, Straus said on June 12, "We came alive, so to speak."

"The idea was to find some immediate ways to help some of the traffic problems," said Straus. "It's clearly an ongoing issue of traffic problems of Route 6."

The two solar-powered signs, one west of the Little Neck Village entrance and another one to the east, will use radar to clock the speed of oncoming traffic and display it on a digital screen, similar to those installed on Spring Street and Front Street at Tabor Academy. The display will begin flashing red once a vehicle exceeds the 50 mph limit. The signs are set to flash only up to 60 mph, at which time the sign will prompt "slow down" to the approaching driver.

A contractor for MassDOT used an app on his phone to program the maximum speed the sign will indicate, as well as when the "slow down" message would be illuminated.

The whole installation and programming of the first sign took about 30 minutes.

"A lot of people are going to be surprised," said Board of Selectmen Chairman Norm Hills as he surveyed the operation of the new sign.

Travers said this was the first speed indicator sign to be installed in MassDOT's District 5. Signs in other districts have shown to be effective in lowering speeds, he said.

"MassDOT is pleased to install this sign which will show motorists their current speed and encourage safe and reliable travel along this roadway," said Highway Administrator Jonathan Gulliver in a press release. "By working closely with elected officials and local leaders, MassDOT is continuing to improve transportation infrastructure and better allow people throughout the Commonwealth to reach the places they need to go."

MassDOT also announced that new sidewalks would be installed on Route 6 near the police station where there are none currently. All permits for the work have been issued, Travers said, and the sidewalks should be installed this month.

Art In Bloom, Indeed

By Marilou Newell

One of the most beautiful and highly anticipated evenings of the summer season is the annual Art In Bloom opening reception at the Marion Art Center.

A partnership, or shall I say, pairing of paintings with floral arrangements not only captures the imagination but also the essence of what can be described as creative imagination at its finest.

On June 8, the gallery's walls displayed triumphant paintings by artist Deborah Quinn-Munson accented by floral works of art arranged by members of Quinn-Munson, whose paintings range from pastels to watercolors and oils, presented a range of works that featured themes of the sea and sky, woodland landscapes, and tender portraits resplendently saturated with light.

Quinn-Munson's love of art began in childhood and evolved into a lifelong pursuit. She earned her Bachelor of Fine Art from the University of New Hampshire after attending the DeCordova Museum School in Lincoln, Massachusetts, a Master of Arts and Liberal Studies from Wesleyan University, and also attended Lyme Academy of Art. Adding to the list of her academic and artistic achievements, the artist also earned a master level designation from the International Association of Pastel Societies. Quinn-Munson is a member of the Salmagundi Club, The Copley Society of Art, Oil Painters of America, and is a signature member of the Pastel Society of America.

Quinn-Munson told The Wanderer, "My inspiration often comes from water – the Connecticut

The artist said that as a child her family summered on Cape Cod and that she has lived in South Dartmouth, as well. Currently, Quinn-Munson lives in Connecticut where her studio is located.

When discussing the use of pastels in her works, Quinn-Munson said, "It is pure pigment giving the colors their vibrancy." Those colors were on full display in such works as "Slippery When Wet," "Field of Gold," "Sweep of Sky," and "Ocean Blue."

floral presentations were once again breathtaking.

Designers Suzie Kokkins, Bobby Fuller, Connie Dolan, Heather Parsons, Karilon Grainger, and recent past president of the Marion Garden Group, Cassy West, paired their works of art with Quinn-Munson's paintings, accenting the paintings' colors and themes.

West's floral arrangement was styled after Ikebana, the art of Japanese flower arranging that employs a few elements placed in cylindrical postures allowing each item's individual identity to be seen, while playing off each other's beauty.

Quinn-Munson's works may be viewed until mid-July. You may also visit www.quinnmunson.com to learn more about the artist and her works, and check out www.marionartcenter.org for upcoming events at the center.

Success Still Circulates at Taber Library

By Caleb Jagoda

In a time when libraries might seem to be an outdated thing of the past, one little library in Marion is confident in its future as it rolls ahead as a center of community within the Tri-Town.

The Elizabeth Taber Library held its annual 2018 meeting on Tuesday, June 12, to discuss the year in review and look ahead at plans for the succeeding year.

The meeting commenced with Libby O'Neil, the director of the town library, thanking all in attendance and going over the statistics of the past year.

According to O'Neil, Taber Library had a circulation of 33,516 books and 2,465 e-books checked out last year while logging 31,127 visits through its front doors. The library also continued to foster its partnerships with several local organizations, including the Council on Aging, the Marion Garden Group, and the League of Women Voters, collaborating on a number of different projects for the betterment of the town.

O'Neil went ahead to report on a variety of programs the library offered during the past year, listing an impressive and expansive number for the seemingly small library. The programs rattled off included children's story time, teen craft programs, a monthly mystery book club, memoir writing workshops, a potluck cookbook club, and even a LEGO club, which was increased to a bi-weekly affair due to its popularity.

After detailing ongoing services provided and plans for the summer, the library board welcomed two new board members, Linda Schuessler and Garret Gryska, who officially began their terms following the meeting Tuesday evening.

All in all, Director O'Neil reported that the library has seen an outstanding amount of growth over the course of the last year, which doesn't seem to be commonplace in a day and age when reading e-books sometimes exceeds the reading of physical books.

O'Neil added that the library and its board members attempt to think outside of the box in order to increase attendance and book circulation.

"I'm not nervous to try something, and if it doesn't work, at least we tried it and we can reassess from there," O'Neil said. "I feel like we have to keep reinventing ourselves. We've just started thinking about creative, different ideas."

Residents 'Attend' Rep. Keating's Tele-Town Hall By Marilou Newell

Regardless of your political persuasion, it's always a good thing when you can discuss with those who represent your patch the issues that you believe are important to your life.

On June 6, Representative William Keating, who represents the 9th District of the Commonwealth covering a large area north from Norwell, south to Nantucket, all of Cape Cod and west through Fall River, reached directly into Mattapoisett homes via the telephone. Outbound "robo-call" connections were made to homes throughout the area, or people could call in using a number his office provided for direct dial-in.

Before taking questions, Keating shared some of the topics he's been addressing with his fellow Congressmen of late.

On the subject of healthcare, Keating said that in the District healthcare was the No. 1 employer; therefore, any impact on services also impacted healthcare workers. He said he was drafting a bill that would give female veterans better access to medical care, saying that the current V.A. structure was not "ready to help women" in the manner they needed. Keating pointed to mental health services for PTSD, gynecological care, and the use of male prosthetics for wounded female combatants as just a few of the services that needed modification for servicewomen.

Keating also talked about emerging employment opportunities from wind energy with a hopeful tone that in the future thousands of jobs would become available when alternate energy sources opened up for business in this area.

Then Keating fielded a wide range of questions from towns like Halifax, Wareham, Eastham, Fall River, Dartmouth, Marion, and Mattapoisett. Questions touched on the most troubling of problems faced today such as school shootings.

Keating said he was not in favor of arming teachers and school administrators and felt there were better ways to control firearms. He said that citizen groups, including students, inspired him and that a variety of ideas had been floated in Congress. He felt that if some of those ideas reached the floor for debate, controls could be found. He proposed stronger, more in-depth background checks before anyone could purchase firearms, and that military-style arms should not be sold to average citizens.

A caller asked about the newly imposed import tariffs. Keating said that his office has been hearing that the impact of tariffs on building materials from Canada was driving up construction cost by as much as

30 percent. He worried about retaliatory export tariffs on agricultural products and, for this area, primarily cranberries. He said in his estimation, tariffs should only be used against "countries threatening our national security."

On financing infrastructure improvements, Keating said that in conversations with trucking companies and truckers, he found them to be in favor of paying more to fix our infrastructure, a point that Keating said surprised him. But he said that with nearly 60 percent of roads and bridges needing repair in the Commonwealth, clearly something had to be done. Keating was not in favor of increasing toll fees.

Other questions Keating heard from residents in his district included Social Security and Medicare reforms, how to decrease the national debt, election financing reforms, drug addiction problems in the military, plastics polluting the oceans, children of refugees being separated from parents, and the problem with exploding medication costs.

Keating said that in the current political climate it was difficult to get bills to the house floor for debate, but he encouraged people to contact his office at 800-780-2626 with questions or concerns, and they could also visit www.keating.house.gov or visit his Facebook page to continue the conversations on those topics most critical to people in District 9.

Homespun and Foreign Invaders

By Marilou Newell

If you are a gardener, either casual or serious, then you know the activity is really a sport – sometimes a blood sport – as you attempt to rid your well-ordered patches of invasive plants.

Some of these green things are evil invaders brought over during the 1700s when, apparently, settlers couldn't stand the thought of living without their European-born plants. Hundreds of years later, we are ripping them out of the ground, tearing our hands on their thorns only to find ourselves repeating the process, growing season after growing season.

gardens are under, on June 9 the Sippican Lands Trust in collaboration with the Marion Garden Group and Marion Women's Club hosted a presentation by Frederick Sechler, Jr. of the New England Wild Flower Society whose topic was invasive plants.

One of the more interesting bits of information Sechler imparted was that not all invasive plant species are really invaders.

An audience member asked if he could identify specimens she held out in a plastic bag, plants that she had been pulling from her gardens continuously year after year. Of the three sprigs Sechler studied, all were "native species." The lady was aghast. The plants were the Virginia creeper, blackberry, and green briar.

Sechler said a gardener might not want those plants in their yards, but banished the notion that all invasive or aggressive varieties came from someplace else. Not to put too fine a point on that comment, he said, "Even poison ivy is native."

Of those plants that are, in fact, foreign born and taking up residence in New England, Sechler identified

Japanese knotweed (looks like bamboo), common reeds known as phragmites, Japanese barberry, water chestnut, and, the worst of the worst, bittersweet and Norway maples.

Sechler said that while some invasive species respond well to chemical eradication, some do not, such as bittersweet. And Japanese knotweed takes a combination of aggressive chemical treatments and removal over years, "And it still might not work well."

Sechler said that oftentimes local permits are required before applying chemical treatments, especially for larger areas, and he cautioned reticent use of such products.

Sechler also noted that many invasive non-native plants like disturbed soils and thus construction and other landscape changes may result in good environments for unwanted plants.

So, what exactly is a non-native invasive plant?

The criteria are: 1) non-native to New England, 2) spreads rapidly, 3) displaces native flora, and 4) persists in natural landscapes.

IPANE, the Invasive Plant Atlas of New England, points out that many invasive plants have been in the environment since the 1700s and are considered non-native and also indigenous. It reports that of the 4,000 indigenous plants originating from that time period, 1,700 are not native to New England.

Movement of the invasive plants includes garden introduction (remember those settlers), accidental transportation (ballast in ships used to relocate said settlers), habitat disturbance (they love soils that have been dug up), birds and other wildlife, and even farm equipment.

Invasives have survived for all those reasons, and the lack of natural predators or pathogens that would control or eliminate their continued presence in New England is why they continue to survive, Sechler said.

To learn more about how you can identify and control invasive plants – both native and non-native – on your property, visit www.newenglandwild.org or contact the Sippican Lands Trust at 508-748-3080 for other resources.

American culinary renaissance, our love affair with all things food is now attributed to cable television's Food Network.

The Wanderer recently sat down with one Mattapoisett resident who was there at the dawn of the Food Network and who may have been the reason why the unique concept of 24-7 broadcasting of single-theme programming ever got off the kitchen counter and into the oven.

Paul Silva is a Mattapoisett Selectman who just so happens to know a thing or two about the cable TV industry, having been an executive in the local corporate machine from 1973 until his retirement in 2000. Listening to him talk about those early days is like a history lesson in how cable television came to be the entertainment delivery giant it is today.

Silva's first job at Rhode Island-based Colony Cablevision, once owned by The Providence Journal and acquired by Continental Cable in the mid 90s, was in sales – door-to-door sales, that is.

"I was trying to build the cable market up in the Boston area so I went door-to-door," he said with something between a smile and a grimace. In one home, he was literally pushed out the door and down a flight of stairs by an angry wife who refused to pay for her unemployed husband to watch TV all day. "I took a tumble," he said with a hearty laugh at the memory.

Surviving that trial by fire, Silva rose through the ranks, becoming the vice president and director of operations in 1988 when he met and collaborated with Joe Langan. Langan reported directly to Silva and needed a steady hand. While he was a creative, hard-working employee, Langan could drift from project to project a bit unfocused, Silva remembered.

During that time, there was a television concept that Silva believed merited further development. The theme was to provide real-time feed from courtrooms where high profile cases were being tried. The inspiration for that concept was the infamous 1984 Big Dan's rape trial in Fall River.

Silva and Langan urged the cable company executives to allow them to pursue that concept, which it did, and Silva was successful in getting the judge in the case to allow the unedited feed from the courtroom to be aired on Colony's network station. Before long, CNN was airing parts of the trial as well. Court TV was born.

That moment in cable TV's evolution helped to bring in viewers and heightened the profile of cable as not just a source for entertainment, but a viable news source to a public who so far was only familiar with network programming via TV antennas and rabbit-ears wrapped in aluminum foil.

Colony, along with other cable companies, searched for programming that would bring in the viewers and the advertising dollars.

Then came food. The idea of doing what PBS was doing so well – airing instructional cooking programs – started to simmer with Silva, now a true believer. The problem was how to get Langan to focus.

"Joe was like an absent-minded professor. If you could get him to focus, he'd run with it, but convincing him took some work," Silva said.

In the book by author Allen Sulkin, From Scratch: The History of the Food Network, Silva is credited with being the driving force behind Langan. In Sulkin's book, Langan is quoted as saying, "If I hadn't had the meeting with Paul, if Paul hadn't told me to go down and write the (concept) out, I mean, who knows, I may have dragged it out for months ... may have gotten distracted with another idea."

While the idea of a channel dedicated solely to cooking had been suggested to Colony's parent company, it hadn't captured the interest Silva felt it deserved. And Langan wasn't overwhelmed, either. But at Silva's insistence, Langan outlined the program on paper. It was presented to the higher-ups, given the financing it needed, and eventually gelled into something even these gentlemen couldn't have imagined at the time.

Silva recalled how the concept of a food channel was a hard sell to other cable providers. It was a slow roast versus a quick sauté. But Colony needed partners to make the channel financially viable.

Silva said that during an annual conference of cable companies held in New Orleans, Colony Cablevision invited executives to attend a cocktail party at Emeril Lagasse's NOLA Restaurant.

Yes, the Emeril Lagasse.

A little wine, a little food, and a heaping cup of promoting was the plan.

"Emeril cooked all this food, no one showed up!" said Silva. "No one knew who Emeril was," So while this recipe failed, Silva and the team kept stirring the pot.

It took years in the test kitchen, that is, corporate marketing, before the Food Network was out of the oven and onto the tables of millions of people around the continent.

"I told Joe, I do this at least three times a day," said Silva, pantomiming eating a sandwich. "Why wouldn't this work? It was very difficult in the beginning, tough to make people see, tough to get partners." But Silva persevered and since he enjoyed watching cooking programs on PBS, he knew there was an audience who would tune in.

"The stars did eventually line up," Silva said. He said that it took cable partners a while to understand the new type of programming that was coming, but what sports programming did for football players, the Food Network did for chefs.

"They became rock stars," Silva said.

By 1993, the Food Network was on its way, seven years after Colony first pitched it to investors.

Today, Silva enjoys thinking about the ups and downs of a career he enjoyed for decades, but downplays his role in the creation of the Food Network. Instead he credits Langan and executives at the Colony Cablevision's parent company, The Providence Journal, for taking a tiny seed of an idea and nurturing it into the bean stock giant it has become.

Food, however, is a pleasant pastime Silva relishes – he does most of the cooking at home.

When asked who taught him how to cook, Silva didn't hesitate. "My mother. She was a good cook.... She made hearty Sunday roasts."

"I enjoy cooking and entertaining our friends," Silva said. One could almost smell the glorious aromas of the recipes he described wafting from his kitchen. "I like to take scallops and float them in maple syrup with a little ginger...."

As for the Food Network, it has created millionaires and international celebrities out of unknown chefs and is now owned by Scripps Networks Interactive, Discovery, Inc., and Tribune Media. And that's no small potatoes.

Sun Ain't Setting on Solar Bids in Rochester

Rochester Planning Board

By Jean Perry

Inquiries from solar farm developers continue to trickle into the Planning Department office, said Rochester's Town Planner Steve Starrett during the June 12 Rochester Planning Board meeting, with at least another six or seven more informal inquiries since April.

Starrett told the board back on April 18 that at that time he had seven informal inquiries for solar energy projects with at least three set for a formal filing. Now, Starrett says, there are seven "in the works" towards a formal filing.

The first will appear before the Planning Board within the next two to four weeks for an informal hearing to hash out plan details and waiver requests before the Special Permit public hearing is scheduled.

That developer is familiar to the residents living in the Mendell Road/Rounseville Road neighborhood – Borrego Solar Systems.

According to Starrett, Borrego is eyeing land located on Vaughan Hill Road this time, but Starrett was reluctant to describe the proposal in detail during a follow-up after the meeting.

Clean Energy Collective, developers of the solar farm that is now complete at 248 Mattapoisett Road, is also interested in further development in Rochester, although that location has not yet been made public.

"We'll see what's going to happen in the next few weeks," Starrett told the board.

Starrett did provide insight into the viability of the preliminary proposals that he's reviewed, saying that with the Town's recent Solar Bylaw amendment approved by Town Meeting in May, "I'd say likely forty percent of them will be approved."

That amendment created a 100-foot setback from the property lines of adjoining lots and a 300-foot buffer from any public roadway – 300 feet more than the zero-foot buffer the bylaw had prior to Town Meeting.

Rochester currently has six fully established solar energy developments in town, with the Mattapoisett Road solar farm set to go online and start feeding the grid as soon as the Town completes its final confirmation of conditions compliance.

"We were told that there'll be a lot of activity this year," said Starrett, who anticipates solar developers will continue to consider Rochester for their next solar project. But once the Commonwealth's existing solar development incentive programs end, Starrett said, Rochester shouldn't see any further applications for another three or four years.

In other matters, residents interested in learning more about the age restricted 55+ residential development slated for the field beside Plumb Corner will have to mark their calendars a fortnight later for the next Planning Board meeting.

The developer, REpurpose Properties, Inc. on June 12 submitted a letter requesting a continuance until the next meeting.

REpurpose Properties is seeking a Special Residential Development Special Permit for a 22-duplex development on Rounseville Road that, once completed, will be known as Village at Plumb Corner.

In other matters, the board signed off on the Approval Not Required Application presented by engineer Bob Rogers for Lorne and Ann Estabrook to redefine existing Lot 16 and combine Lots 1 and 2 on Estabrook Way to create one 83-acre parcel. This is the Atlantic white cedar swamp property that will be donated to and acquired by the Rochester Land Trust

Complex Partnership Stalls RDA

Mattapoisett Conservation Commission

By Marilou Newell

It was a bit like putting the cart before the horse on June 11 when Mike Huguenin of the Mattapoisett Land Trust and Jack Sidor of the Buzzards Bay Coalition came before the Mattapoisett Conservation Commission to have a Request for Determination of Applicability filing heard.

At issue is an effort on the part of the MLT and BBC to construct new trails and install bog boards on property that will ultimately be owned by the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation, but locally managed and conserved by the partnership between the MLT and BBC.

But all the moving parts – legal agreements and plans – have not been fully codified on the parcel known as “Hammond Quarry” off Mattapoisett Neck Road. Funding for the acquisition of the privately held land is currently an agreement that brings together monies from a variety of agencies and private sources as well as the municipality.

Huguenin said that while the DCR wants to have trails and public access similar to other state-owned recreational properties, MassWildlife’s Natural Heritage & Endangered Species Program favored something less obtrusive. And although a letter from Natural Heritage concurring that the proposed work wouldn’t negatively impact wildlife was anticipated, it was not currently in hand.

Conservation Commission Chairman Mike King was hesitant to grant the RDA in the absence of the letter.

“There’s still the formality of getting the letter.... Bog boards would allow turtle movement, but we have a checklist,” King said. He also said that while the commission was not in disagreement with the filing, without the letter they couldn’t vote on the filing.

“We’re almost doing the state a favor,” Huguenin said.

King responded, “I would love to move forward but don’t want to set a precedent.”

The hearing was continued until June 25.

Also coming before the commission in what proved to be a short meeting was the Mattapoisett Congregational Church with a RDA to construct a handicap ramp. A Negative 2 determination was delivered.

Trash Heap of Trouble for Marion Waste Disposal

Carver, Marion, Wareham Regional Refuse Disposal District Committee

By Jean Perry

Since the committee for the Carver, Marion, Wareham Regional Refuse Disposal District fired its Executive Director Ray Pickles in January, the dumpster fire that Pickles left behind from years of mismanagement burns on, and the future of trash disposal in Marion is suffused in the smoky uncertainty of pending transfer station closures and pricey stickers for residents forced to fund a waste disposal overhaul.

Not only will the three towns have to split the $25,000 bill for a forensic audit of the district after Pickles let six years pass without an annual audit of the district's finances, the committee is paying previous years' bills using its fiscal year 2018 budget and making difficult decisions resulting from unauthorized overpayments Pickles made to employees over the years for vacation and sick time buybacks.

What's more, the district's contract to dispose of its trash with Covanta expires in 2020, and no one knows what the committee is going to do about it. What is clear, however, is that a critical overhaul of the district could mean closing the Marion transfer station and consolidating the district's Rochester facility, building an entirely new increased capacity facility, or even dissolving the district with the three towns going their separate ways.

The committee struggled on June 6 with these issues and more. "Reality..." grumbled committee Chairman Steve Cushing after Carver's Town Administrator Michael Milanoski took to the white board for a woeful lesson that could have been titled

"Existentialism and Despair in Municipal Economics."

The cost of disposal is going up, said Milanoski, as well as associated fuel costs. Without Covanta, he said, the district would have to purchase its own equipment, make upgrades to one consolidated facility, and try to operate it for, say, $600,000 instead of $1 million.

"That's about the only thing we have control over," said Milanoski.

The likely scenario for continuing the waste disposal district and keeping it solvent is the closure of the Marion facility and the expansion of the Rochester station. But after years of never having to pay any significant fees for the disposal of trash, residents of the three towns might have to purchase annual disposal stickers, perhaps even two – one for the district and one for their town – or buy district trash bags along with town assessments to fund the operations.

"People can freak out," said Milanoski, "but we as three towns ... have been extremely fortunate because we got the big goose egg."

But that goose egg, Milanoski said, is going away.

"It's not a political decision," said Milanoski.

"You're gonna have to start paying for the service that you've been getting for twenty-five years for free."

At the end of the day, said Milanoski, "It's math. We only have so many levers we can control.... We can't control the cost of disposal or fuel ... labor, either."

"There's a whole lot of ways that we have to do in this," said Marion Town Administrator Paul Dawson. "The committee members are going to have to agree on a policy."

Included in a policy would be more robust regulations with steep fines to deter illegal dumping, which the committee suspects would increase once disposal fees are implemented.

The Town of Rochester, which has been sending Selectman Brad Morse and the town administrator to these committee meetings just to listen in, could even consider joining the district once its own trash contract expires to mitigate its own possible waste disposal woes.

"In this changing market, it's just the way it's got to be," Dawson said. "Nobody likes it, but the reality is we've got to deal with it."

But at least one thing was certain, and that was the district needs a new executive director to guide the committee towards a vision of how it wants to manage its operations moving forward and to help defuse the ticking time bombs before the two and a half year deadline.

"We really don't have a plan here," said Cushing. "We have nothing here but an idea and that's it.... We can't afford to continue on with nobody at the helm."

There was some good news, though, said Marion Finance Director Judith Mooney. Finances are practically up to date and stable, and further financial documents have been discovered that will assist in the financial audit, although the district expects the Department of Revenue will render a number of "significant findings" against the district – a pickle to dill with when the time comes.

In other matters, the district will hold a hazardous waste disposal day on August 11 and will soon make an announcement allotting a specific time frame for each of the three towns to keep the flow manageable.

The CMWRRDD Committee decided to meet again the following Wednesday, June 13, at 5:00 pm at the Marion police station to discuss Pickles' overpayment of a retired employee and an advertisement for the executive director position.

ORR Adopts Stricter AP, Athletics Requirements

Old Rochester Regional School Committee

By Jean Perry

Students interested in Advanced Placement courses and athletics at the high school should check the student handbook at the start of the next school year for updated, stricter policies approved by the Old Rochester Regional School Committee on June 6.

Although the practice was adopted four years ago, students who take an AP course will find that the handbook next year spells out the policy that there is no option to drop out of an AP course. Once you're in, you're in, said Principal Mike Devoll, so students need to commit to AP classes with eyes wide open to the scope of the

The practice was adopted, Devoll said, for several reasons.

"It's expensive to run AP courses in terms of training teachers, the supplies needed," said Devoll. "If it's a science class the labs are expensive ... so we found four years ago ... students dropped AP courses at far higher rates than other courses."

The changes in schedule that resulted from students dropping AP courses, Devoll said, "It was really wreaking havoc."

The school wants to be as transparent as possible, Devoll said, and clear in its expectations of AP students. Students and their parents are encouraged to investigate before committing to AP, and options for summer work are available for students to make informed decisions before taking on AP courses that they must stick with.

"We allow level changes (in other courses), but for AP courses there is no level to drop down to," said Devoll, explaining the need for the policy.

In addition, a new policy was adopted that increases the academic threshold for eligibility in participating in athletics, especially in sports that make cuts.

Up until now, students were required to pass only five classes in order to participate in school sports. Now, they must pass six classes to be active in school athletics.

Passing a class means a minimum number grade of 65.

"We found that our current threshold was not substantial enough," said Devoll, saying that athletes could fail three of their classes and still play sports, but not anymore. "And that didn't sit right with anyone at our school. We felt that was too low of a benchmark for a student to clear to be eligible, for failing three classes. We don't feel like your attention should be directed onto the athletic field. It should be [directed at] the classroom."

Students now must pass six classes, failing no more than two. Most students take seven classes, said Devoll, adding, "Failing two or more classes, really, I don't think those students should be representing our school at that time until they get their grades in order."

With sports that make cuts, Devoll said, "It's not appropriate to cut a student in favor of someone who has poor grades [in that term].... It's not fair to make a cut knowing that the student in all likelihood is going to be ineligible when report cards are issued in April and so we cut a student in favor of someone who isn't passing ... six classes."

Another change Devoll presented pertaining to auditing classes simply added a bullet to the existing student handbook language, clarifying that audited classes are graded as either pass or fail, and Devoll wants students to realize that colleges will view that "pass" as a number grade of 65, a detriment to the student in the long term.

"An audit is not a great option for a student who is seeking competitive colleges, so we try to discourage an audit and that's why," said Devoll.

Over at the junior high, student handbook language will now include 'vaping' devices in its smoking policy, which previously only mentioned e-cigarette use in addition to combustible tobacco products.

Also, the personal device policy has been made stricter. Students used to be able to keep their cell phones on their person during the day but had to keep them powered off during school hours. Now, students must leave their cell phones in their lockers during the day.

The junior high reports that cell phone use, in particular the game "Fortnite," has become a major distraction for students, with visible upticks in bandwidth use at the school as a result of students sneaking access to their cell phone, particularly during bathroom breaks.

"We still grapple with technology," said School Committee Chairman Tina Rood. "This is the yin and yang of this tool that we have."

The next meeting of the Old Rochester Regional School Committee is scheduled for September 12 at 6:30 pm in the ORRJHS media room.

miraculous comeback victory in the ninth, after already forcing extra innings, but were unable to pull out a win in the quarterfinals of the Division 3 South Sectional baseball tournament, falling 13-10 to No. 18 Falmouth.

Though Old Rochester was the higher-seeded team, ranked 10th in the South, the Clippers were certainly much better than their rank – at least offensively. Falmouth rattled off 15 hits in the win, nine being extra-base hits, two of which were home runs.

"They could hit the heck out of the ball," Old Rochester coach Steve Carvalho said. "They came back with their number one on three days rest, put two wins together, and they took some good cuts. Our pitchers did the best they could against them."

As intimidating as Falmouth's offense was, Old Rochester's offense never relented. The Bulldogs fell behind in the top of the first 1-0, and then took a 3-1 lead in the bottom half. They fell behind again in the third, 4-3, then tied it 4-4 in the bottom of the inning.

It did, however, seem like all hope was lost when Falmouth took a 7-4 lead heading into the sixth inning. But Old Rochester didn't give up, with Chris LaBelle knocking in two in the sixth to make it 7-6, then Bryce Afonso knocking in the tying run in the seventh to force 7-7.

"I give Falmouth credit for what they did, but I'm certainly proud of these Bulldogs," said Carvalho. "We just tried to stay focused and make sure we were having good at-bats, played good defense, and piecing our pitching together."

Carvalho continued, "I'm very proud of these kids. We are playing a little short-handed – we are, there's no getting around it – and they did everything in their power to get to this point, to try to get back to the next round."

Unfortunately for Old Rochester, Falmouth went on to score six runs in the ninth, capped off by Jared Chroches' three-run blast. The Bulldogs would respond, but could only cut the lead in half in the bottom of the ninth.

"The ups and downs and the rollercoaster rides are what make this great game the game that we love,"

Carvalho said. "It's a new at-bat, pitch-to-pitch and we've been talking about small victories all year. We were that close to pulling this one off."

This also marks the end of three Bulldog careers: Shortstop Jake Asiaf (who went 3-for-4 against Falmouth), pitcher/infielder Mike Kennefick, and left fielder James Dwyer (2-for-4).

"I cannot say enough about Jake and what he's brought to the team," Carvalho said. "Saw a little bit of it this winter with what he did in basketball, but it's just about how he goes about his business every day."

"Mike Kennefick is going to the Eastern Massachusetts All-Star Game for a reason. Mike is as valuable as they come," said Carvalho. "He hit in the mid-.400s, was one of the top arms in the league, and he's irreplaceable right now. He's going to pitch in college for a reason and is one of the most coachable kids I've ever had. An outstanding young man."

And as for Dwyer, Carvalho said, "James Dwyer's made himself into a good baseball player since his sophomore year. Played a good left field for us, has tough at-bats. We're going to miss them. And all three of those kids were dirt dogs. They did everything in their power to help this team be successful."

Kennefick and Asiaf intend to continue their careers at college. Kennefick will play for UMass Boston, and Asiaf intends to play for Johnson and Wales University.

Old Colony

Old Colony's spring sports season came to end with softball, baseball, and girls' lacrosse suffering a loss in the tournament.

Softball won its first round matchup 13-7 over No. 9 Sturgis East, but was unable to figure out top-seeded West Bridgewater in the quarterfinals of the Div. 3 South Sectional Tournament, falling 14-0. The Cougars finish the year 13-7.

Emily Littles finished with 154 strikeouts on the season, her career high in a season, logging 480 over her four-year varsity career.

Baseball lost in the first round of the Div. 4 South sectional tournament to No. 14 Coyle-Cassidy. The Cougars finished the year 15-4.

Girls' lacrosse took a ferry ride to see No. 7 Martha's Vineyard in the first round of the Div. 2 South Sectional Tournament, but could not get an edge, falling 22-6 to the Vineyarders. The Cougars finished the season 15-3.

The We the People Resolution (S.2243) is moving forward from the Senate's Committee on Rules (chaired by Senator Montigny) to consideration by the full Senate. The forward motion of this resolution is due in no small measure to the efforts and support given by Sen. Mark Montigny.

The Resolution, which failed to get voted out of committee during the last Legislative session, is designed to overcome the control of our society by a handful of wealthy oligarchs with an inherent conflict of interest. The town of Mattapoisett voted in favor of supporting this initiative at last year's Annual Town Meeting.

The Resolution, when finally passed by both the House and the Senate, will ask Congress to amend the U.S. Constitution to overcome the disastrous impact of

Sippican Historical Society

In 1998, the Sippican Historical Society commissioned an architectural survey of Marion's historic homes and buildings. The survey was funded one-half by the Sippican Historical Society and one-half by the Massachusetts Historical Commission. Because of the limits of funding, not all of the historic buildings were surveyed, but over 100 were catalogued and photographed. The results of the survey are in digital form on the Massachusetts Historical Commission's website and in four binders in the Sippican Historical Society's office (and at the Marion Town Clerk's office). Marion (Old Rochester) is one of the oldest towns in the United States, and the Sippican Historical Society maintains an extensive collection of documentation on its historic buildings. The Sippican Historical Society will preview one building a week so that the residents of Marion can understand more about its unique historical architecture. This installment features 13 County Road, the Marion Methodist Church.

The Marion Methodist Church at 13 County Road, an example of Italianate design, was built in 1865-1866. It occupies the site of an earlier church built in 1834 and known as the Methodist Protestant Church. The first minister was Rev. Calvin Cummings. The second pastor, Rev. Nathan S. Clark, lived nearby at 536 Front Street. Later ministers included N.W. Britton and R.H. Dorr. In 1866, this church became known as the Methodist Episcopal Church and Rev. Able served as its minister for only one year. Later ministers include D.J. Griffin (1867-1869), N.W. Chase (1870), J.B. Washburn (1872-1875), Fred Upham (1875-1876), E.W. Culver (1877-1878), T.B. Gurney (1879), Samuel McKeown (1880-1881), Daniel M. Rogers (1872), and J. Lincoln Litch (1883-1884). The church was sold in 2010.

by which police departments strive to meet and maintain standards that have been established for the profession, by the profession. These carefully selected standards reflect critical areas of police management, operations, and technical support activities. They cover areas such as policy development, emergency response planning, training, communications, property and evidence handling, use of force, vehicular pursuit, prisoner transportation and holding facilities. The program not only sets standards for the law enforcement profession, but also for the delivery of police services to citizens of the commonwealth.

"Achieving Accreditation from the Massachusetts Police Accreditation Commission is a very significant accomplishment and a recognition highly regarded by the law enforcement community," said Donna Taylor Mooers, the Commission's Executive Director."

Under the leadership of Chief John Garcia, the Marion Police Department was assessed in January by a team of Commission-appointed assessors. The Assessment Team found the Department to be in compliance with all applicable standards for Accreditation.

"Going through the process initially requires intense self-scrutiny, and ultimately provides a quality assurance review of the agency," said Mooers. To conduct the initial self-assessment and prepare for the on-site review of the 318 standards by the Commission, Chief Garcia appointed Lt. Richard Nighelli to serve as the Department's Accreditation Manager.

The Commission offers two program awards: Certification and Accreditation, with Accreditation being the higher of the two. Accreditation has been granted for a period of three years. Participation in the program is strictly voluntary.

I have 3 cats and one of them isn't using the litter box consistently. I clean the box every few days and have a covered box nicely enclosed in a closet. Is one of my cats sick?

It's amazing that your cats have put up with your litter box behavior. There should be 1 box per indoor cat so you need 2 more boxes. The boxes should be cleaned daily at the very least. Cats in general do not like covered boxes. Get rid of the cover. Cats also prefer boxes to be as out in the open as possible so they don't feel trapped going in or out. There should be 2 or 3 ways for the cat to get out of the box. In general, cats prefer clumping litter as well. Stay with one that works and don't get fooled into buying whatever is on sale.

on Tuesday, June 19 at 10:15 am to discuss How Green Was My Valley by Richard Llewellyn. This classic about a Welsh mining family at the end of the 19th century is heartwarming and joyous. It was made into a movie by director John Ford and featured a young Roddy McDowall as the narrator Hu. Copies are available at the library.

"Just the Facts," the Nonfiction Book Group, will discuss Mark Kurlansky's The Basque History of the World on Thursday, June 19 at 6:30 pm. Straddling a small corner of Spain and France in a land that is marked on no maps except their own, the Basques are Europe's oldest nation without having become a country. Learn more about this culture by picking up a copy of the book at the library.

Join us to discuss this book on Thursday, June 28 at 6:30 pm.

Car Wash for Craddock Center

On Saturday, June 23 from 9:00 am until noon, you can support Mattapoisett Congregational Church's Mission Trip and help a friend at the same time. Get all of that pollen washed off your car in the parking lot of the G.H. Dunn Insurance Agency, located at 64 Fairhaven Road in Mattapoisett.

The second week of July, fourteen members of our congregation, The Craddock Crew 2018, ranging in age from 11 to 60+, will load up two SUVs and drive 1,100 miles to the Craddock Center in the Appalachian Mountains of northern Georgia. There we will serve a largely Guatemalan immigrant population who make their living working in poultry processing plants.

What is the Craddock Center? Founded on the inspiration of Dr. Fred B. Craddock, a preacher, a teacher, a storyteller, a friend to the poor and a native of rural Humboldt, TN, the Craddock Center's goal is to bring "Happy and Hope" to children in Southern Appalachia.

Buzzards Bay Coalition Golf Tournament

Golfers of all abilities have a unique opportunity to enjoy an afternoon of golf at a championship golf course while also making a difference to clean up pollution in New Bedford Harbor at the Buzzards Bay Coalition's annual Golf Tournament on Friday, October 19 at the Bay Club at Mattapoisett.

All proceeds from the Golf Tournament go into a dedicated fund to support the cleanup of nitrogen pollution – Buzzards Bay's largest pollutant – in New Bedford Harbor. Bring your business associates and friends out to enjoy a day of good cheer on the golf course for a great cause!

For golfers, this event is a rare opportunity to enjoy the private Bay Club's parkland-style 7,000-yard course, designed by PGA Tour professional Brad Faxon in conjunction with golf course architect Brad Booth. With 88 percent of its 625 forested acres preserved, the Bay Club is the only Certified Silver Audubon Signature Sanctuary in Massachusetts.

Scott Zeien, owner of Kingman Yacht Center in Bourne, is returning to the Golf Tournament for the sixth time this year. "This is a wonderful opportunity to play a beautiful, private course of the highest caliber," he said. "When you add that all the players are united in purpose to help preserve our Bay, it adds a level of camaraderie and community to the event."

The tournament is a scramble format with practice at 10:00 am and a shotgun start at 12:00 pm. Registration is $250 for individuals or $1,000 for a foursome. Registration includes 18 holes of golf, greens fees, cart rental, tournament gift, boxed lunches, beer and snacks on the course, and a lively after-party reception at the renowned Golf House Restaurant with cocktails, light fare, and awards and prizes, including an opportunity to putt for the chance to win $5,000.

Not a golfer? You can still enjoy the festivities and support for clean water by purchasing a $35 ticket to the cocktail party reception, which begins at 5:00 pm.

Joanna "Jenny" DeLuz, 85, of Mattapoisett died June 6, 2018 at Sippican Health Care Center.

Born in Mattapoisett, the daughter of the late Candidio and Mary J. (Lima) DeLuz, she lived in Mattapoisett all of her life.

She was a communicant of St. Anthony's Church.

Jenny was formerly employed by Aerovox before retiring from Acushnet Company.

She enjoyed knitting and sewing.

Survivors include her sister, Dominga Pina of Fairhaven; her nieces and nephews, Joseph Alves, Daniel Alves, Beverly Alexander, Dianne Luz, Mary Lisbon, Barbara Lisbon and John Lisbon; and many great-nieces and great-nephews.

She was the sister of the late Maria Alves, Manuel Luz and Elizabeth Lisbon and the aunt of the late Robert Alves, James Pina, William Pina and Patricia Pina.

Her Funeral was held on Monday at the Saunders-Dwyer Mattapoisett Home For Funerals, 50 County Rd. (Rt. 6), Mattapoisett, followed by her Funeral Mass at St. Anthony's Church. Burial followed in St. Anthony's Cemetery. Visiting hours were held on Sunday. For guestbook, please visit www.saundersdwyer.com.

Maurice "Mudgie" Tavares passed away peacefully on Saturday, June 9, 2018 at the Care One healthcare facility in New Bedford. Mudgie was the son of the late Alfred Tavares and the late Minnie Fermino, and the step-son of the late Charles A. Fermino, Sr.

Born in Mattapoisett on April 13, 1931, Mudgie was given his nickname by his aunt, after a Native American spirit, meaning "first-born son" and "caring giver." He graduated from New Bedford Vocational High School in 1949, where he ran track, a sport for which he developed a lifelong passion.

Mudgie was a communicant of St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Mattapoisett, where, starting as an altar boy, his lifelong commitment to serving his community began.

Mudgie dedicated his entire life to helping people, especially the children of the Old Rochester School District. Working for 36 years as head custodian of Center School in Mattapoisett, Mudgie became a father figure to the countless children to whom he gave selflessly. From anonymously purchasing new sneakers and athletic equipment for children of families in need, to listening to and encouraging kids in times of angst, Mudgie was always there, as a positive influence on generations of Mattapoisett youths.

Mudgie's iconic station wagon was more a "chariot of charity," delivering kids to sports practices; taking them to games; bringing them home safely; and carting gifts of groceries and Christmas presents to the underprivileged. As founder of the Mattapoisett Track Club, Mudgie established the town's Wharf Dances in the early 1970s, to raise funds to support the track club and to give young people a safe place to enjoy Thursday nights in the summertime.

Mudgie also initiated and organized two summer women's basketball leagues and a field hockey league. He was also an active member of the Mattapoisett Lions Club and was given their prestigious Citizen of the Year Award in 1983.

Mudgie was the recipient of countless awards and honors recognizing his service to the community, not the least of which were the naming of the Maurice "Mudgie" Tavares Playground at Center School in Mattapoisett; the Maurice "Mudgie" Tavares Track and Field at Old Rochester Regional High School in Mattapoisett; and the Marian Medal Award, given by the Catholic Diocese of Fall River.

Mudgie was an enthusiastic basketball fan and devoted jazz aficionado, and he took great enjoyment in listening to the music Duke Ellington and Count Basie.

Mudgie is survived by his sister, Caroline Sylvia, and her husband, John B. Sylvia, Jr., of Marion; two brothers: Peter Fermino and David Fermino, and David's wife, Victoria Fermino, of Mattapoisett; a niece, Karen Ramos, of Mattapoisett; a nephew, Charles Sylvia, of Providence; a great-niece, Brittany Fevrier, and her husband, Lawens Fevrier, of Smithfield, RI; a great-nephew, Graham Tuxworth, of Newton; and two great-great-nephews, Lawsen and Greysen Fevrier, of Smithfield, RI. Mudgie was the brother of the late Charles A. Fermino, Jr.

dimensional art. During her high school years, she learned to paint through her internship with Jay Ryan, a local watercolor artist. In addition, Emma is well versed in the Adobe Suite and enjoys creating digital artworks. However, it was not until she began studying at Maine College of Art that she realized her desired area of interest was sculpture. She has learned not only how to create three-dimensional works of art but how to replicate her work in various mediums through mold-making techniques as well. Her influences include the art of George Segal, Henri Matisse, Edward Hopper, and Michelangelo. Her inspiration has and always will be people. Much like Hopper and Segal, she hopes to achieve a high level of care in her work that showcases the beauty of the people around her going about their daily lives.

Emma was a 2016 recipient of BWAA's Scholastic Art Award. Her presentation will be held at BB's Restaurant, Wareham, on Tuesday, June 19 from 6:30 - 8:00 pm. The public is welcome to come and listen to her speak on her college experience and future endeavors.

Senate Assistant Majority Leader Mark Montigny (D-New Bedford) is pleased to announce that the Massachusetts Department of Public Health awarded Positive Action Against Chemical Addiction (PAACA) in New Bedford a $27,777 grant to combat the critical problem of substance abuse.

The Department awarded a total of nine grants of $27,777 to each of the Recovery Support Centers across the Commonwealth. The funding will help providers like PAACA provide essential services to clients in recovery, and offer recovery education and peer support to aid in relapse prevention.

"This funding provides critical resources to help our local partners in the fight against substance abuse and the opioid epidemic, caused in large part by corrupt pharmaceutical companies and a slow government response," said Senator Montigny. "While more resources are certainly required, I want to thank Carl Alves and his entire team at PAACA for their continued and sustained

MOVIE REVIEW

Splatstick

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

The Night of the Virgin.* Starring Javier Bódalo and Miriam Martín. Directed by Roberto San Sebastián. Running time: 100 minutes. No MPAA rating, but for adults only. Now on streaming services.

The gleefully repulsive Spanish horror-comedy The Night of the Virgin is what used to be called a party movie. You put it on late in the evening and watch all your friends either dig it or file out ashen-faced one by one. The virgin of the title is Nico (Javier Bódalo), barely out of his teens, who goes to a New Year's Eve party looking to shed his V. He encounters Medea (Miriam Martín), a mysterious woman who has about three decades on him. Medea takes Nico back to her scummy, cockroach-infested apartment, and she wants to do something about his virginity, all right, but nowhere near in the way he expects or wants. There is, for example, a goddess named Naoshi who must be appeased.

Up front I should mention that the version of The Night of the Virgin that did the film-festival rounds for a couple of years ran almost two hours (and a common complaint was that you could feel the two hours). The version that I saw, and that will presumably be hitting video-on-demand soon, weighs in at about fifteen minutes shorter, though it looks to these eyes no less grotesque. Various bodily fluids still become buoyant, ready for their close-ups. Director Roberto San Sebastián and scripter Guillermo Guerrero may or may not be digging for metaphorical gold here — who knows? Most of it seems like a roughhouse gorehound reversal of that well-worn exploitation trope the violation of the virgin, who here is male. “Evil Has No Gender,” the tagline informs us.

This is the sort of film with character names like “Chica Vómito,” “Sodomita Pasivo” and — of course — “Sodomita Activo.” For all that, the sex in the film (in this cut, anyway) isn't particularly graphic; and for all the liberal use of “maricón” to describe our hapless, horse-faced young protagonist, the movie seems driven by an absolute horror of hetero sex. No, the main event here is the volume of gouts, shpritzes, puddles and Pollock drip-painting of dark, syrupy blood, accompanied by comedically precise foley work on the various assaults on the flesh — enough wet squelching sounds to keep David Lynch chipper for days. The action is mostly limited to Medea's ghastly apartment, the drama essentially a three-character play (Medea's ex-boyfriend, played by Víctor Amilibia, makes an appearance about halfway through, eventually beseeching Nico through the locked door to sacrifice his virtue for the greater not-so-good).

What can make an antic splatterthon like The Night of the Virgin bearable and even fun despite its icky unpleasantness is some evidence of irrepressible personality on the part of its makers. When I saw Bad Taste all those years ago, could I — or anyone — have predicted that Peter Jackson, the man responsible for its farcical carnage seemingly inspired by Monty Python's “Sam Peckinpah's Salad Days,” would go on to become Tolkien's obsessive film liaison with a row of Oscars on his shelf? Likely not, and the same goes for Guillermo del Toro, who took his own golden boy this past winter. Oliver Stone got his start with the z-budget horror Seizure. And so on.

That's not to say that Roberto San Sebastián will be invited to the Dolby Theatre in the next ten years — but it's also not to say he won't. What he brings to the slimy party here is a certain sportive sadism. I'll be curious what else San Sebastián does, what else interests him — is The Night of the Virgin the debut of a new genre star, joyfully coating the squares with bodily goo, or is it a calling card for someone who, having gotten the chaos and gunk out of his system, would now like to adapt Ibsen or Murakami? Again, I'm not sure if the events or uglinesses here are meant to represent anything larger than themselves, the way the pre-Black Knight spurts of blood through armor in Bresson's Lancelot du Lac indicated a need to strip the heroism out of the Arthurian legend, but I'm pretty sure this will be the only review of The Night of the Virgin to mention Bresson.

Silvershell and more.

All programs are available on their website at www.marionma.gov/recreation-department. Participants may register online, in-person, or by mail.

In conjunction with this announcement, Marion Recreation is pleased to host an Open House and Registration Night on Thursday, June 14 from 5:00 - 7:00 pm at the Benjamin D. Cushing Community Center at 465 Mill Street (Route 6) in Marion. The community center will be staffed with Directors, Counselors and Instructors from our many summer programs who can answer questions, demonstrate typical lessons and activities that will be carried out in summer programs and help get you registered. Miss Massachusetts Is Out For Blood

Miss Massachusetts, Jillian Zucco, will host a community blood drive with the American Red Cross on World Blood Donor Day, Thursday, June 14 from 1:00 to 6:00 pm at St. Anthony's Church hall at 22 Barstow Street in Mattapoisett.

As a 2016 graduate of UMass Dartmouth's Nursing program, now working full-time as a registered nurse, Ms. Zucco is committed to strengthening our community and helping to meet hospital and patient needs through blood donations. "This blood drive is a way of providing community members an opportunity to make a difference in the lives of others. The short amount of time it takes to donate can mean a lifetime to a patient in critical need."

Blood is a perishable product that can only come from volunteer blood donors. With someone in the U.S. needing blood every two seconds, blood products must be constantly replenished, according to the Red Cross.

"We urge eligible donors to join us in the selfless act of giving blood. There's no better feeling than knowing that your blood donation may give someone a second chance at life."

There's a serious need of all blood types, especially O negative, A negative and B negative. O negative is the universal blood type that can be safely transfused to anyone and is often used to treat trauma

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Cheer up, Lamb. Your emotional impasse will lift once you allow your highly tuned sense of justice to guide you on what to do about an associate's questionable behavior.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) News about a project you hoped to work on might need more clarification. Take nothing just on faith. Draw up a list of questions, and insist on each being fully answered.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Giving your time to help others is fine. But don't lose sight of your own needs. Make plans for an energy-restoring getaway with that very special person in your life.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Congratulate yourself on getting that difficult job done to everyone's satisfaction. This could be the first of many such challenges you might be offered down the line.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) With your enthusiasm soaring again, you feel ready to tackle a tough new assignment. Good for you! And remember: Don't be too proud to accept help when it's offered.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Cupid rules the week for single Virgos eager to make a romantic connection. Meanwhile, Virgo couples experience renewed commitment in their relationships.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Home and work issues vie for your attention through early next week. Rely on your Libran sense of balance to keep you from being overwhelmed by either side.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Creative projects might have to go on standby as you tackle other matters making demands on your time and energy. Things should ease by the middle of next week.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your energies are high, and so are your aspirations. But be careful not to let work dominate the week. It's also important to spend time with family and friends.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's a good time to set aside your pride and stop nursing those hurt feelings. Instead, consider restoring relationships you want to have back in your life.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might be miffed at not being shown more appreciation for your hard work. But don't brood over it. Recognition comes in its own time and in its own way.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) With your inner creative juices starting to boil and bubble, this is a good time to launch a new arts-related project, or go back and restart the one you had set aside.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of seeing the best in people, which helps encourage them to live up to your perceptions.

music.

In 1987, Jodry was first-place winner in the Boston Chapter of the American Guild of Organists Young Artists Competition. He has been heard in recital in Europe and throughout the U.S., including cathedrals in Seattle, Cleveland, Portland, Paris, and most recently at Trinity Church, Wall Street. Currently, he is serving as music director at First Unitarian Church in Providence, where he is also director of choral activities at Brown University.

In addition to the Great Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor, BWV 542, of J.S. Bach, three chorale preludes by Johannes Brahms from his Op. 122, and César Franck's Prélude, Fugue, and Variation, Op. 18, Jodry will perform works by James Woodman and Craig Phillips based on familiar hymns, which the audience will be invited to sing.

The First Congregational Church in Marion was built in 1841. In early 1884, a new organ by noted builder George S. Hutchings was installed with the help of a gift from local philanthropist Elizabeth Taber. Since 2015, the church has presented recitals on this organ by outstanding organists, including Christa Rakich, Stephen Young, Carson Cooman, Jeremy Bruns, and Robert Jan August. The Rev. Mary Ann Purtill is the newly installed pastor of the church and Beverly Peduzzi is organist/choirmaster.

Tickets for the recitals at $10 may be purchased at The Bookstall on Front Street in Marion and at the door. For more information and reservations, call 508-

On Saturday, June 30 from 10:00 am to 4:00 pm, rain or shine, nine beautiful distinctive village, town, and seaside gardens will be showcased. Some are secluded or hidden at first glance, while others are home-styled landscaped, and picturesque others are surrounded by the sea. There are outdoor structures like gazebos, arbors and even a wood-burning sauna! You will see annuals, meadows, rock gardens, perennials and patio blossoms that will transport you with fragrant features to magical and stunning environments of nature.

Our garden tour is a major way to raise money for our Scholarship Fund and other charitable contributions.
